

Internationales Jacob Böhme-Institut e.V. in Görlitz
c/o Oberlausitzische Bibliothek, Handwerk 2, D-02826 Görlitz
www.jacob-boehme.org

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

J a c o b – B ö h m e — P r e i s 2 0 1 7

The Internationales Jacob Böhme Institut Görlitz (IJBI) and Oberlausitzische Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften (OLGdW) are pleased to announce the call for applications for next year's Jacob Böhme Award 2017. Junior researchers under 35 are invited to submit their research essays on Jacob Böhme's 'Reformation of the Reformation', and his relationship with Martin Luther. The essay should present new and original research in accessible scholarly prose, and should not exceed 30 pages. We appreciate essays that have a clear structure and are presented in a lucid manner. Deadline: March 1, 2017.

We are interested in the following questions:

How are we to understand the 'Reformation of the Reformation'? Was Böhme a Lutheran? In what way, if any, is Böhme indebted to Martin Luther? Have Luther's writings had an effect on the remarkable poetic force of Böhme's language — if so, in what way?

The award includes prize money of 1,000 Euros, funded by Internationales Jacob Böhme Institut Görlitz. With this prize, IJBI and OLGdW acknowledge outstanding achievements regarding the exploration of Jacob Böhme's life and work from a historical, biographical or philosophical angle.

The winner of the prize will be selected by the jury under exclusion of legal proceedings. The prize may be split if more than one submission meet the criteria. It will be awarded during the Institute's spring conference in 2017.

Please send the printed essay (max. 30 pages / 10,000 words / 60,000 characters) to Internationales Jacob-Böhme Institut e.V.

c/o Oberlausitzische Bibliothek der Wissenschaften
Handwerk 2
D-02826 Görlitz
Germany

Digital files (word or pdf) may be submitted at: info@jacob-boehme.org

For more information, please visit our website: <http://www.jacob-boehme.org/>

Dr. Thomas Regehly (President)